Any other information pertinent to Stay Alive activity for this current month (including pictures and a brief story about a Stay Alive student or teacher and how the program affects their lives):

The month under review we had a new change in the Stay Alive program in Ghana. We started introducing the 5-In-1 manuals in the schools. There was the need to help the teachers to use it effectively. We did it on one on one basis in the various schools. The LDS program is taking off with an additional stake (Adenta stake) to the original two. Some religious bodies have expressed the interest to teach the program to their youth. We are finalising plans to do that.

Any other information pertinent to Stay Alive activity for this current month (including pictures and a brief story about a Stay Alive student or teacher and how the program affects their lives):

The month under review we had to begin visiting some private schools around Adenta and Madina where we are living. I made a short write-up and a letter of introduction which Abigail goes round the schools with, while I work on the official introductory letter from GES.

I was made to make three presentations to the National SHEP, The curriculum Division of the ministry of education and lastly to the GES. At the GES, all those I had made previous presentations to were present. It was interesting the questions they were asking.

I, however, was in LEKMA to monitor them to teach the lessons while we wait for the letter. We cannot make our manuals be sitting down in their schools without being used. They interested in our program more than their "SCHOOL ALERT".

The dates for the LDS training was rescheduled to October.

There were a total of 92 kids taught Stay Alive in four of the six villages.

I talked with our Program Director about the difficult issues surrounding the lack of enthusiasm for the lessons. He said that it is the capacity of the promoters (teachers). The promoters are boring and do not use many activities or techniques to keep the children interested. He feels the promoters need more training to teach them strategies for better teaching.

Tanzania

Per Joram Mhango, implementation was planned to begin in Mwanza but that did not happen. Last communication from Joram in October was that he planned to begin again. SJ

Uganda

I believe that Stay Alive is still being taught in Uganda. If I understand correctly, there have been changes made by the government that limit the teaching of Stay Alive in government sponsored schools. I have not received any reports from Uganda from July-December 2012. SJ
